

HOW THE PUBLIC IS IMPOSED UPON BEWARE OF FRAUDS.

For The Sake Of Profit They Will Sacrifice Principal, Health, Etc.

Unscrupulous dealers are trying to sell ordinary Glauber Salt or a mixture of Sedlitz Powder as "Artificial Carlsbad Salt," "Sprudel Salt," "German Salt," or "Improved Carlsbad Salt," and under other similar names. The Natural Remedies of Carlsbad cannot be imitated.

"What Nature makes cannot improve." Artificially made wines will never replace the natural waters of Carlsbad, nor the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt, which is evaporated from the Sprudel Water at Carlsbad, an excellent aperient, laxative and diuretic; is an alternative and eliminative remedy, which dissolves the bile, always irritates, as most cathartics do. The summer months when plenty of outdoor exercise can be had, are the most desirable for the "Carlsbad Cure." Use the imported Carlsbad waters, or if it is not convenient to use the waters, or when a more decided laxative effect is desired, use the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt.

Insist upon the genuine, which is imported direct from Carlsbad, and must have the signature of Elsner and Mendelson Co., Sole Agents for the U. S. 132 & 144 Franklin St., New York, on every bottle.

GENERAL NEWS OF INDUSTRIES

The coal operators of the Clearfield and associated Pennsylvania districts assembled in Philadelphia yesterday to consider their position toward their striking employees. After a thorough discussion of the situation the following resolutions were adopted: "We, the operators of Clearfield and associated districts, after mature consideration, have unanimously decided it is impossible to pay our employees any advance over the scale of wages now in force, namely 40 cents per ton of 2,400 pounds for digging coal, and we pledge ourselves to maintain the same until the operators decide to give their old men until May 25 to return to work, and if they have not done so by that time to take such measures as they may deem advisable.

The Electrical Review says that the electrical business has reached that point where the margin of profit is such that an increased production and a wider market are necessary to enable the dividends to be earned. The present cost of manufacture, generally speaking, is as low as is consistent with salable quality, and can be further reduced only by increasing the quantity. The decline in prices has been steady for two years and has not been offset by an increasing market.

The Merchants' Warehousing company, which is practically a Pennsylvania railroad corporation, has arranged to double its present capitalization, the authorized amount of which is $125,000. The object in making this increase is to add to the facilities of the company, and at least one or two large warehouses will be built in Philadelphia.

A western genius has invented a machine for making gas for illuminating purposes out of wood instead of coal. The machinery is very simple, consisting merely of a retort and purifying chamber, with a tank for holding the gas. A man who has the machine can be used for domestic purposes, and that by attaching it to an ordinary cooking stove enough gas to last a day can be made by the fire necessary to do the cooking.

Under an opinion handed down by Justice Mitchell in the supreme court yesterday, the Philadelphia Traction company and not the city owners are liable for the cost of paving the spaces made bare by the raising of the old market sheds on Spring Garden street. The work was done by Contractor Nestor under an order of collecting from the property owners abutting on the street. He was unable to collect his claims, however, as it was contended that the railway company was liable. Nestor will now probably have to bring another suit against the company.

In the Pocahontas mines, in Virginia, nearly all the miners are on strike. They have kept right on at work during the strike, and it is said, when approached recently by agitators, ran them out of the district by threatening them with tar and feathers. It is understood that when the strike first came on the Pocahontas operators made a voluntary advance of 5 cents per ton to these negro miners, and thus executed a flank movement on the agitators.

As a color-producer coal tar has no equal. From that apparently useless substance perfumes, medicines and dyes have been formed which have startled men. But color appeals to the eye. Only thirty-six years ago, says Longman's Magazine, Perkins "gathered up the fragments" of coal tar and produced the beautiful mauve dye. Now, from the greasy material which was considered useless is produced madder, which makes coal tar worth $100 a ton. Tinting coloring materials now employ an industry of $3,000,000 per annum. One ton of good cannot coal, when distilled in gas retorts, leaves twelve gallons of coal tar, from which are produced a pound of benzine, a pound of toluene, a pound and a half of phenol, six pounds of naphthalene, a small quantity of xylene and a half a pound of anthracene for drying purposes. According to Roscoe there are sixteen distinct yellow colors, twelve orange, thirty red, fifteen blue, seven green and nine violet, besides a number of browns, and an infinite number of blendings of all shades.

MINOR INDUSTRIAL NOTES:
The New York Central uses about 3,500 tons of coal daily, or about 1,250,000 tons per year.
Ex-Sheriff A. B. Stevens, of Scranton, has disposed of his mining interests at Pottsville.
All of the mines of the Susquehanna Coal company at Nanticoke and Glenview increased the working hours from five to nine per day.
After June 1st the Erie and Co. will send their coal to tide-water over the Lehigh Valley railroad with their own trains and crews.
The coal traffic is brightening up in the Schuylkill Valley, and the Pennsylvania railroad is putting back several of the crews suspended.
The Chester Traction company has extended its lines for one fare from the Lehigh Valley road to flooders' corner, giving the people of Norwood a 5-cent ride to Chester instead of 10 cents, as formerly.
The Erie handled 10,744 cars which came under the Western New York Car Service association during the month of April, 97.9 per cent, of which were released within the time limit before car service began to accrue.
The Carbondale Leader is authority for a statement that a move is being made in Houderdale for the organization of a second street railway company independent and separate from the one in which D. Duncan, of the Carbondale Traction company, is interested.

WHAT PROFESSOR ROLFE SAYS.
A Man Who Hasn't Read Shakespeare Should Ask for Public Prayers.
Professor William J. Rolfe, of Cambridge, gave the third of his Shakespearean lectures at the Amherst summer school, speaking on "Shakespeare as a Man." He spoke of Shakespeare, the author and teacher, only incidentally in relation to the man. He said in part: "No record is given of Shakespeare's birth, but his baptism is recorded, and it is only natural to suppose that he was baptized three days after his birth. Most, if not all, his schooling came between the ages of seven and fifteen. All is mere conjecture as to what he did after leaving school."

"He absorbed information from every source, less from teachers and books than from things around him. Before he was twenty-one he was the father of three children, and as his father was exceedingly poor, he had to shift for himself, and went to London. Here, in some way, he obtained a humble position in a theater. In 1592 he was referred to in a passage which shows that he had already been an actor." Mr. Rolfe recommended to his hearers "Judith Shakespeare" as a novel wonderfully true to the life and customs of the famous poet's times.

Referring to Shakespeare's married life, the speaker said that critics have found a contradiction in the poet's reported unhappiness during his married life, and show that there is no direct praise of a married woman in his work, but in "The Taming of the Shrew" he characterizes directly to the contrary. The sonnets are autobiographical, and show that the writer had a great dislike for the affected manners of his time and gradually freed himself from them. Note his repeated sharp hints at false hair and foppishness, his scorn in classical allusions and his dislike for Puritans, more because of their ways than their doctrines. His knowledge of music was remarkably thorough. As a friend he was capable of the most thorough devotion, and some of his descriptions of love between men are much more convincing than any between a man and a woman.

In all respects Shakespeare's heroes have most admirable characters. His young men were healthy, brave, well bred, cultivated, self-restrained. No one supposes that he was a teetotaler, but I do not believe he was intemperate according to the standard of his day. His references to religious subjects are proofs of his religious feelings, and he makes remarks that an irreligious writer would have omitted. The 140th sonnet is a deeply religious, personal utterance of Shakespeare's.

His moral convictions were sound and healthy, and he habitually contemplated human duty as a sacred thing, and the paramount duty of living for others was often set forth. He never allowed evil to overcome with evil, but always evil with good. Of dogmatism he was free, and of the true spirit of religion he was full. He was of an eminently practical turn of mind, and it has been shown that he was a shrewd business man. He was a man, however, with all the frailties and infirmities of human nature. "A man who has not read Shakespeare should have public prayers offered up for him."—Springfield Republican.

Man's Torture.
Dr. Arbuthnot suffered in later life from an agonizing malady. Yet when some lady was complaining of the sufferings of women, he humorously replied, "Yes, the ladies suffer greatly in some particulars, but there is not one of you who undergoes the torture of being shaved three times a week."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Dyspepsia and Indigestion
In their worst forms are cured by the use of P. P. P. If you are debilitated and run down, or if you need a tonic to regain strength and lost appetite, strength and vigor, take P. P. P., and you will be strong and healthy. For shattered constitutions and lost manhood P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium) is the king of all medicines. P. P. P. is the greatest blood purifier in the world. For sale by all druggists.

One Lesson of Memory.
It need to be said that the Democratic party never learned anything and never forgot anything. It has forgotten the Chicago platform.

Holes
in your lungs are the Homes of Consumption Germs. The diseased spots are wiped out with new tissue made by the Cream of Cod-liver Oil, and hypophosphites. This acts immediately upon the Lungs and makes new tissue there. Physicians, the world over, endorse it.

WHY SHOULD PARIS DICTATE?
Parisian fashions tell us that more in both plain and fancy varieties was never so much used as at present, and that black and white are still a favorite combination. By the bye, why must we in America depend so absolutely on the dictum of people at the other side of the world in regard to costume? Why do we not have our own authorities on dress and invent our own styles rather than appear in European fashions which have begun to stale there before they have gained a hold here? As it is, we look to England for our tailor made modes and get all the rest from Paris, with a little unacknowledged assistance from Vienna. Perhaps our slavishness in this respect accounts in a measure for the opinion entertained of us by the average untraveled European, who fancies that we are a nation of imitators.
